

Abstract of the Disclosure

An ultra-high-speed radiographic imaging assembly is useful for pediatric radiography to provide images with improved contrast and sharpness and reduced fog. The high speed film includes at least two silver halide emulsion layers on each side of a film support that comprise tabular high silver bromide grains.